Jblm visitor pass requirements

Joint Base Lewis-McChord is a controlled access installation. Vehicles with an adult, authorized Department of Defense ID cardholder (ages 18 or older) with an ID card listed on the DOD-issued ID cards website may enter JBLM through any open gate. Vehicles without an adult, authorized DOD ID cardholder (18 or older) present must report to the Visitor Control Center adjacent to either the Lewis Main Liberty Gate (I-5 exit 120) or McChord Field Main Gate (I-5 exit 125) to receive a temporary pass. To do this, you must have a valid driver's license, vehicle registration, proof of insurance and have an adult, authorized DOD sponsor (18 or older) willing to sponsor your base access. Sponsors must be available by phone to complete the pass issuance process. Skip to Content Welcome to the beautiful area known as the Pacific Northwest and your new assignment at Joint Base Lewis-McChord! Although the installation and its mission have changed over the years, one thing has not – the picturesque setting of the base. On a clear day (it doesn't rain ALL the time), majestic Mount Rainier looms on the horizon. From the mountains to the deep waters of Puget Sound and the Pacific Ocean, the local areas abound in natural beauty and outdoor recreation opportunities. The installation is both brand new and full of history. Camp Lewis (now Fort Lewis) was established in 1917 after 70,000 acres of Washington land was donated to the federal government. McChord Air Force Base was established in 1947, the same year the Air Force became a separate branch of the armed forces. Joint Base Lewis-McChord is an amalgamation of the Army's Fort Lewis and the Air Force's McChord Air Force Base. It was merged in 2010 as a result of the Base Realignment and Closure Commission recommendations of 2005. Since then, JBLM has grown to become the largest Army-led joint base in the United States. Joint Base Lewis-McChord consists of four geographical areas: Lewis Main, Lewis North, McChord Field and Yakima Training Center, encompassing more than 400,000 acres and nearly 210,000 active duty personnel, reserves, civilian personnel, dependents, and local retirees. The installation is home to I Corps and the 62nd Airlift Wing. Continue reading for an in-depth guide to help aid you in your transition to living and working on Joint Base Lewis-McChord. Where Should I Live Near Joint Base Lewis-McChord? Cities Near Joint Base Lewis-McChord There are two main cities near Joint Base Lewis-McChord. Both are situated alongside a major interstate, making it easy to get to and from the installation. Lakewood, WA Lakewood is considered a suburb of Tacoma, with more than 61,000 people calling it home. The city hasn't been around long but it's established as one of the most beautiful places to live around Puget Sound. Housing is plentiful and it's one of the more affordable places to live in Washington. There are year-round activities its residents can enjoy. Lakewood is home to three golf courses and is minutes away from acclaimed Chambers Bay. Millions flock to Lakewood every year to visit the 340-acre Fort Steilacoom Park. If history is your thing, the 500-year-old Thornewood Castle is a unique place to explore and relive moments from some of your favorite movies (Rose Red and There Will Be Blood). Tacoma, WA Lakewood is the suburb of Tacoma and many consider Tacoma to be the suburb of Seattle, though it's quite an established city in its own right, with a population over 217,000. There is so much to do in this suburb turned big city. The "City of Destiny" is known for the Museum of Glass, with works by renowned glass artist Dale Chihuly, and Point Defiance Zoo & Aquarium, which features wildlife of the Pacific Rim. Those who can't afford to live in Seattle or want a slightly slower pace choose to come here. Housing is plentiful and most residents choose to rent, with the median gross rent sitting just above the national average at $1,106 per month. There is so much to see and do in this eclectic city. Hot Tip: Look for Joint Base Lewis-McChord homes and apartments for rent or sale, and find BAH, PCS, TLA & ETS military housing information at AHRN.com. Joint Base Lewis-McChord Schools Washington adopted the nation's Common Core standards in 2011. The national standards ensure your children will be able to transition easily to life in the Pacific Northwest and receive a quality education. You'll find a ton of elementary, intermediate, and high schools to choose from, both public and private. Not to mention pre-schools and daycare facilities for the younger kids. Whether you decide to enroll your kids in the on-post elementary schools in the Clover Park School District, or a school in another district, rest assured that they'll have access to the finest education possible. And if your child requires extra help, there are a number of programs available. The on-post school liaison officer will be there to help make the tough transition to a new school easier. Joint Base Lewis-McChord Weather The rumors you've heard about lots of rain in the Pacific Northwest are true. You will experience very rainy and overcast winters but the summers are warm and dry. Spring Rain is a common occurrence at this time of year. The phrase "April showers brings May flowers" holds true here. When it's not raining, the temperatures are pleasant, trending on the warm side. The season is ideal for outdoor recreation and entertainment. Summer Things start to warm up at the end of June. The higher temps will stick around until mid-September. This is when it's ideal to get out and take advantage of all of the outdoor activities. The average daytime temps in the summer months peak around the high 70s. The warmest days usually fall in August. Fall The rainy season starts in the fall and lasts through spring. Temperatures are still on the warmer side but rain has a 30% chance of falling, especially in October. The temps are still above 60. This is when people like to camp and fish in the area. Winter As you would expect, the lowest temperatures of the year are during the winter months. Lows are found in the mid 30s and the highs usually creep toward the mid 50s. Washington can see snow but you're more likely to get rain and a lot of wind during the winter months. Skiing can be enjoyed a short trip away. To find out more in-depth information on the weather in the area, visit JBLM Weather: What To Expect When Moving Here. Things to Do Near Joint Base Lewis-McChord There are tons of opportunities to enjoy the great outdoors with fishing, hiking, boating, and hunting at nearby parks and lakes, and access to large cities for concerts, world famous museums, and outstanding restaurants. There are also fun annual events like the Daffodil Festival that makes its way throughout Pierce County. Fantastic restaurants, live music, Pike Place Market and special events are just a short drive away in Seattle. Not to mention the recreation and entertainment options available on post thanks to Joint Base Lewis-McChord Family and MWR. Suggested Read: 19 of the Best Joint Base Lewis Mcchord Things to Do Nearby Hot Tip: Connect with military-trusted businesses and deals exclusively for Joint Base Lewis McChord at MyBaseGuide. Conclusion Don't let the rain falling at Joint Base Lewis-McChord rain on your parade. This area is bustling with things to do that will make you feel lucky to be stationed here. With a long military history, it is one of the most sought-after installations for postings, and for good reason. The area is beautifully green and clean (that rain comes in handy for something) and you'll have the opportunity to train with some of the best. Moving to a new place has its challenges but you'll be glad to be here.
